EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Tilton Presents his Statement to the Investigating Committee.

New York, July 21.—Tilton appeared before the Investigating Committee last night and read his statement. At half past 1 o'clock in the morning he left Dr Storrs' residence, accompanied by his friend Frank Moulton. A score of eager reporters gathered around Tilton as he emerged from the residence of Dr Storrs and eagerly inquired [illegible]. He said, "I have nothing to say except that I have made my statement and think it conclusive." In reply to a question as to whether his statement [illegible] he said [illegible] committee [illegible] that nothing should be made public as yet. He then rode off with Moulton. The committee refused in a most decided manner to give any information whatever. [illegible] that there were other [illegible]

Confession of a Youthful Murderer.

Boston, July 21.—Jesse H. Pomeroy has made a confession of the murder of Katy Curran. He says Katy came to the store on an errand for paper. He directed her to the cellar and she went. He followed her to the middle of the cellar, where he put his left arm around her neck, and a knife in his right hand cut her throat. He concealed the body, washed his hands and then returned to the store and told nobody.

Printers Suspected of Poisoning Non-Union Compositors.

[illegible] July 21.—Great hostility is manifested by men now working in the Gazette office by men in the city. Threats of bloodshed have been made by the latter, and last night, after a midnight lunch, many compositors were seized with vomiting, which was accompanied with a burning sensation in the palate. It is supposed the coffee they drank was poisoned. It will be analyzed to-day.

Indian Fighting.

Galveston, July 21.—A Galveston News Austin special says news has been received at the General's headquarters that on June 26th the Cheyennes and Comanches attacked the [illegible] at Dobe Walls, Indian Territory, and were repulsed with a loss of 8 killed and wounded. [illegible] with Indians are reported from all [illegible].

The Indian Campaign.

Washington, July 21.—In connection with the [illegible] of Gen. Sheridan for offensive operations against the Kiowas, Comanches and Cheyennes, the Secretary of War has instructed the General of the Army as follows:

Washington, July 20, 1874.

[illegible] returned to the General of the army [illegible] with suggestions and recommendations received to-day from Acting Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The hostiles will be pursued and punished wherever found, and the reservation lines should be no barrier to such operations. Care should be taken to separate innocent and friendly Indians who are at the agency and have taken no part in hostile forays. Measures should be immediately taken to keep friendly Indians from others, and [illegible] be offered others who are friendly and have not had opportunity to join them [illegible], and all who persist in hostilities should be [illegible] punished. The Secretary of the Interior will be immediately informed of these instructions, and a copy of the letter of the Secretary of the Interior of the 18th, inclosing a communication from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs of the same date, received to-day, will be sent as soon as copied to you and to Gen Sheridan.

Troubles Ahead in Mississippi.

[illegible] July 21.—A telegram received at the [illegible] this morning from A K Davis, Lieutenant Governor and Acting Governor of Mississippi, says party feeling in Vicksburg was very high [illegible] of an election to take place August [illegible], asking that U S troops be stationed there to prevent any outbreak. The telegram has been forwarded to President Grant at Long Branch.

[illegible] for Grant—A Premature Discharge.

[illegible] Ohio, July 21.—The Republican Convention for the Fourth Congressional District nominated Geo. E. Smith, and passed resolutions endorsing [illegible] for a third term.

A Terrible Record of Crime.

New York, July 21.—The case of the boy murderer Pomeroy, at Boston, was again brought into notice by yesterday's confession of the murder of Katy Curran. The lad, now 14 years old, was two years ago convicted of maiming some of his playmates in a shocking manner. He was sent to the Reform School and was pardoned out in [illegible] last. One of his little playmates [illegible] disappeared, and the body was found [illegible] mutilated in the manner previously adopted [illegible]. The circumstances of the case all point to Pomeroy as the probable murderer. He was arrested and made a confession, which has since been denied, but he has not yet been put on trial. About the same time Katy Curran, aged 10 [illegible], mysteriously disappeared. All search proved unavailing, but last Saturday her remains were found concealed in the cellar of a store occupied by Pomeroy.

Miscellaneous News.

Chicago, July 21.—In the case of the Union Trust Co. of New York against the Rockford, Rock Island and St. Louis railway, brought in the U S Circuit Court to foreclose $[illegible] trust deeds and for the appointment of a receiver, Judge Blodgett yesterday dismissed the bill on the ground that a sufficient number of bondholders had not joined in the request to the trustees [illegible], and also that the bill was prematurely filed [illegible] default of [illegible].

A New Cabinet at Versailles.

Paris, July 20.—In the Assembly to-day General de Cissey, Minister of War and Vice President of the Council, announced that Baron De Chabaud La Tour had been appointed Minister of the Interior and M. Mathieu Bodet Minister of Finance. He further said that the Cabinet as now organized had not had sufficient time to agree upon its policy, and asked a postponement of the Constitutional debate till Thursday. Agreed to.

The new ministerial appointments are considered favorable to the Bonapartists, who are now without representatives in the Cabinet.

In the Assembly next Thursday, Changarnier will move a further postponement of the debate on the constitutional bills until January 1875. On this [illegible] the Ministry will remain neutral. The Left will oppose the motion. The disorganization of the Right is increasing.

Niagara, Ont., July 21.—The victims of the yacht Foam were found this morning on the American shore nearly opposite here.

Fort Rowan, Ont., July [illegible].—Sixty persons were fined to-day for violation of the fishery act.

A Critic Crushed.—In a recent poem Mr W D Howells alluded to the cottonwood on the banks of the Miami, and somebody took exception to it, saying "there isn't a cottonwood within two or three hundred miles of that river." The paragraph started on the rounds of the press, and on its travels found lodgment in the Belmont (Ohio) Chronicle. From that paper the Ashtabula Sentinel, whose editor is supposed to know something of the poet Howells, and to have a paternal pride in his reputation, clipped the paragraph and appended this comment: "Mark Twain chose the agricultural department of the paper he was editing, because, as he never lived on a farm, his experience would not interfere with his theories of farming. He insisted that to shake turnips from the trees was not the best way to gather them, but that a boy should go up and pick them. Now we lived about the Miami river. Have fished [illegible] and swam in it. Know it from [illegible] river to North Bend, and we know there are thousands of cottonwood trees on its banks. The editor of [illegible] cottonwood [illegible] wonder if he thinks cotton grows on trees [illegible] wool grows on sheep [illegible]."

[illegible] by Hair.—Little Billy was [illegible] and tired the other night, and he asked his father to take him on his knee. [illegible] was tired or pretended to be. "[illegible] hold me on your knee," he whined. "[illegible] I cannot do it, I am tired," replied the father, impatiently. "You wasn't very tired last night [illegible] hold Mary on your knee in the [illegible]." [illegible] a spanking and was put to bed, [illegible] and Mrs. Barton had a little [illegible] pretty servant girl Mary is now [illegible] a situation without a character.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 21.—At an early hour this morning a man whose name could not be learned walked out of a third story window of Dargan's boarding house on Natoma street, near Second, while in a fit of somnambulism. He fell a distance of over 30 feet, receiving injuries which will probably prove fatal. The unfortunate man was removed to St. Mary's Hospital.

The weather to-day is very cold for the season.

It is reported to-day that negotiations relative to the sailing of the British steamer Ba[illegible] have been closed, and that she will sail for [illegible] Thursday or Friday. [illegible] mails expected to arrive to-night and passengers. It is further stated that [illegible] is $250 [illegible] the round trip.

The wreck of the ship [illegible] will be sold at auction this afternoon for the benefit of all concerned.

San Francisco, July 21.—The steamer [illegible] is being fitted up for the reception and transportation of 300 troops of the Eighth Infantry from the Department of the Platte to replace the same number taken out of Arizona. The Newbern will sail next Saturday.

Greenbacks, 90¼@91¼.

San Francisco, July 21.—The steamer Alaska will not sail for China and Japan until July 28.

The wrecked ship Warrior Queen was sold at auction this afternoon to Chas. Harley for $789.

Alexander S. Finney, accused of having embezzled $8644 from the Bank of British North America, was before the Fourth District Court this afternoon for a reduction of bail, which the Police Court had fixed at $10,000. Judge Morrison reduced bail to $5000.

Interior California.

San Diego, July 21.—The following is the decision in the case of the U S against W J McCormick: "To warrant a commitment of accused, the evidence must be such as to afford a strong presumption of his guilt. This is the law governing the case. I have carefully and impartially examined the evidence and the law presented before me in this case, and find that while there are some circumstances that place the defendant in a somewhat unfavorable light, there are none of a character sufficiently strong to warrant, on the evidence before me, a committal. Therefore the defendant is hereby discharged.

D. B. HOFFMAN, U. S. Com'r."

The Judge reprehended severely the course of a portion of the press with premature judgment in the case, and of certain individuals with implied threats intended to intimidate the Court.

San Jose, July 21.—A son, eleven years old, of Chas. McKiernan, well known as Mountain Charley, accidentally shot himself dead this morning. He went out hunting squirrels, and the gun getting caught in a log went off, wounding him so that he died in a short time.

Vasquez has been visited at the jail by a continued stream of people all day. He sits, composedly through it all, in jail office, with a Sheriff's deputy either side of him.

Los Angeles, July 21.—It is rumored that the railroad Company will soon complete the road which now terminates at Los Nietos on to Anaheim. The distance is about seventeen miles through a section of county that is one solid grain field.

Joe Murphy is drawing crowded houses.

A slight shower of rain fell here to-day.

News from the San Fernando oil regions is that wells being sunk are giving promising indications of oil.

San Diego, July 21.—A week ago last Saturday night the safe of Gilbert & Bros., lumber dealers, was broken open. Two holes being cut into the same, the burglars got nothing but a wallet containing papers, which was taken but and the contents scattered on the floor. The instruments used were apparently an ax and a crowbar. By the advice of Deputy Sheriff Miller and Marshal Knowles the matter has been kept secret until now. Last evening a Mexican was arrested by Marshal Knowles on suspicion.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

Body of a Missing Man found in the Willamette River.

Salem, July 21.—The body of Geo. Spong, who was missed from home in March last and supposed to be drowned, was found floating in the river six miles below this city by the officer of the steamer Success after having been in the water one hundred and [illegible] days. The body was much decomposed, but not beyond recognition.

DR. WYTHE'S BUG.

THE WONDERS OF THE MICROSCOPE AS EXHIBITED BY A DOZEN OF SCIENTISTS.

The Microscopical Society met last night at their rooms, 431 California street. There were only a few present, but they were a very scientific few—Dr. Wythe, Harry Edwards and [illegible] of that ilk. A Chronicle reporter happened in about 9, and in the course of events the rotary table, with the tremendous powered microscope, was passed around to him.

"This," said Dr. Wythe, "is the mucous membrane of a caterpiller."

"Thank you," said the reporter, and he took a look.

The mucous membrane of the caterpiller looked like one of the garden patches out in the direction of the Mission, but still the reporter said to Dr. Wythe that he thought it was one of the prettiest things he ever saw. And so it was. It looked like a delightful park, all laid out in plats and lawns, in beautiful ponds, in arbors, pavilions and charming walks.

"Oh! that's nothing," said Dr. Wythe; "wait till I show you the beauties of the ribbon fish. You see him here only laid out on a piece of glass, and you can't tell what he is for the life of you. Wait until I can get him under this power." With this the Doctor put the ribbon fish, about half an inch long, under the instrument.

The reporter looked.

For an instant his vision was puzzled. Then he began to take it in.

THE RIBBON FISH

Had jaws like a crocodile, scales like the alligator, and a tail like Jonah's whale. He was alive. He lived on a rose leaf. He curved and contorted and hopped about like the proprietor of the Alta on collection day. He did not seem the least bit embarrassed. Once in a while the Chronicle man had to tickle his tail to get him to move at all, but the ribbon failed to respond to the tickles. Then said Dr. Wythe, and as he said it he moved the instrument from Harry Edwards eyes, "this is something particularly beautiful. Take a look." The reporter bent his eyes to the glass. The thing didn't look particularly interesting.

"Well, this is a bit of animal life," said the Doctor, "and I ought to stir it up well. Suppose you get your naked eye on him and stir him up." This the Chronicle man did with a needle point, and the result was a world of beautiful things in the brightest light. The things grew golden claws, moved out like celestial lovers in illimitable space. Its eyes were as sanguinous rubies, glowing, shining, glowing, with the refulgence of crimson velvet in the sunshine. Its back shone like a lot of twenty dollar pieces in the Bank of California, and its stomach was like unto a Mr. Harley's. It was an enormous object, and viewed under the glass its appearance made one's flesh creep.

"What is that?" asked the reporter of the Rev. Dr. Wythe.

"That, sir, is a bug."—S. F. Chronicle, July 17.

Muffin Game of Pistol Ball.—Memphis, July 9.—During a game of base ball in the suburbs last evening a negro man who was in the way of Peter Meath, the catcher, was ordered out of the way, to which he responded with an oath, and, drawing a pistol, fired at Meath, who ran to his coat and getting a pistol, returned the fire. Some half a dozen shots were fired in the melee that ensued, the negro firing at other members of the club. Finally he was shot in the back and then terribly beaten.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

[illegible] VIEWS IN [illegible] CHANCES OF A THIRD TERM—THE FINANCIAL QUESTION AND THE DEMOCRACY'S OPPORTUNITY.

That distinguished ex-Confederate officer, Gen. Gordon, the new United States Senator from Georgia, who made a brilliant record in Congress, has just returned home. On his way back through Atlanta he was interviewed by a representative of the Atlanta Herald, who elicited the following very interesting expressions of opinion from Senator Gordon on political topics all of deep importance to the South:

Reporter—Do you, General, think that there is anything in the [illegible] third term inspiration [illegible] as is suggested by the [illegible]?

General G.—I certainly do. I think that President Grant [illegible] [illegible] I am very intimate with him [illegible] is almost any one [illegible] always very cordial with me. [illegible] certainly intends to run again.

Reporter—Will the Republican party nominate him again?

Gen. G.—I do not think Gen. Grant desires a party nomination at their hands. His ambition is to run as the people's candidate, not as a Democratic or a Republican candidate, but as a candidate of the people of the United States, as a candidate of a great Grant party, if you please. Evidences of this ambition are evinced daily. His absolute independence of all Republican leaders, the indifference with which he incurs the enmity of Morton, Logan or Butler, and above all the evident pains he takes to show the South that he is not her enemy. A man cannot be with Grant any length of time before he catches his kindly drift in favor of the Southern people. His idea seems to be to show our people that he is President not of one section but of the Republic, and that he shall deal to them just such judgments as to those who followed the stars and stripes. Still if Grant wants the nomination of the Republican party he will get it. Not that they prefer him to any other candidate. Not at all. For with the tradition of the Republic and in the spirit of our institutions so decidedly against such a course, they will be timid about offering a third term candidate. They will nominate him, though, because they will be afraid not to do it, for two reasons: First, they believe he is the only man who can lead the Republican party to victory. And (they are right in this) that he is much stronger than his party. Secondly, they fear that if they leave him out he will be picked up by some third party, or even by the Democratic party, and run against them. Hence, if he wants the nomination, in my opinion he will get it without any trouble.

Reporter—In the event of Grant not offering, who will be the probable Republican candidate?

General G.—I think that E. B. Washburne, our present Minister to France, is by long odds the most prominent. He is Grant's especial friend and adviser, and besides his own power and popularity would have the benefit of Grant's strength with the party. If Grant could name his successor as the Republican nominee, and I think he could pretty nearly do it, he would certainly name Washburne.

Reporter—What are the chances, in your opinion, for the success of the Radical party under Grant?

General G.—I think the Democracy will have a certain victory. They will have three points, either one of which will be almost irresistible. First—Grant cannot be elected on his financial platform. The great mass of the people are opposed to the speedy return to specie payments that he advocates, because they believe it will bring panics ten times worse than the one we are just recovering from, and ruin the country. They all believe in hard money as a fact, and love to talk of it as a boast, but they don't believe in wading through ruin and bankruptcy to resumption. Grant, on his veto platform, or his policy set forth in his memorandum to Senator Jones, can't in my opinion carry a single Western or Southern State, and I doubt if he can carry Pennsylvania. Second. It would be almost impossible for him to enter the White House for a third term. The whole spirit of the Republic is against it. It would be deemed an audacious grasp at a dictatorship. The people who revere the Republic and its traditions will rise to put it down. And yet, with this terrible influence against him, Grant is the strongest man his party can run. Morton and Logan are both aspirants, but neither can bring to their party the influence and enthusiasm to the canvass that Grant can. So that I think, if the party runs against the [illegible] of the people at the approaching [illegible], it will encounter defeat. If [illegible] Grant is beaten, there is no other man in its ranks that is strong enough to lead the party through another victorious campaign.

Reporter—You said that there were three strong points that the Democracy could put to the country against the Radical party, and you only mention two—what is the other?

General G.—Oh, that is the strongest of them all. It is the corruption and the rottenness of the party. It must stagger any man no longer under its load of [illegible]. The Sanborn contract, the Credit Mobilier, the [illegible] system, the District of Columbia jobs, and above all the carpet bag scoundrelisms in the Southern States, all these arrayed against the party will kill it.

Reporter—You think the Democratic party has victory ahead of them then in the next campaign?

General G.—Almost certainly, unless they make some terrible blunder. If by imprudence of speech or action the Southern people give the Republicans a chance to fly the issues of corruption and misgovernment and the differences on which the war was fought and which are still invincible in the North, we will [illegible] fight. The passions and prejudices of the war are dying out very rapidly in the North, and if nothing rash is done to revive them we can meet the Republicans on the [illegible] issues and rout them horse, foot and dragoons. One reason that I have for believing that the war prejudices are dying out in the North is that the House, which is the freshest from the people, is much more conservative and liberal than the Senate. This is another notable fact and a very significant one.

Reporter—If the chances of the Democracy being so bright, there must be in that party a number of candidates for the [illegible] nomination. Who do you consider the coming man in the race?

General G.—Allen G. Thurman of Ohio is at present by far the most prominent candidate. His splendid campaign in Ohio last year, carrying it for the Democracy for the first time in many years, gave him a splendid start. You see Ohio at one time polled 42,000 Radical majority. To have whipped this down and then carried the State is no small victory. Pendleton is also a leading candidate on his currency platform, and Wm. G. W[illegible] [illegible] of Ohio, [illegible] by his friends. Thus you see Ohio offers three candidates. Next to him I should place Hendricks of Indiana and Hancock of Pennsylvania. Of these two I think Hendricks is probably the strongest, from the fact that the West must furnish the candidate. I think that either of these candidates with a good platform could carry New Hampshire and Connecticut of the New England States; New York, New Jersey, Delaware and probably Pennsylvania of the Middle States; all of the Southern States except South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, and Ohio, Indiana, California, Oregon and Nebraska of the Western States.

Reporter—Do you think the Civil Rights bill will pass the next session?

General G.—I am almost sure of it. You see it failed last session only because it needed a two-thirds vote to bring it up. Next session it can be taken up in its regular order and carried by a simple majority. It had sixty-nine majority in the House on its issue last month. With the same Congress to vote on it next session, I think it will certainly pass.

Reporter—Will the President veto it?

General G.—His inclinations will certainly lead him to do it. The party pressure though will be a very strong in favor of his signing it, and I fear he will not resist it. He is very self willed though, and there is no saying what he will do. If he vetoes it it could be staved off until the next Congress was elected. It could be beaten, for I am confident that in the next House the majority will be reversed.

TILTON'S FOLLY AND HIS VIEWS OF BEECHER.

From the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

Eight years ago Theodore Tilton had the finest position and reputation for a young man in this country or age. He is an orator of first class power, a poet of real merit, an editor of vast ability. He is handsome, socially proud, and the husband of a lovely, petite, modest, accomplished wife. Mrs. Tilton is highly and most honorably connected—her father, the revered Judge N. B. Morse, of the Supreme Court, conservative on all moral and religious questions, and who was, we believe, a brother to the eminent Prof. S. F. B. Morse, and Prof. [illegible] Morse. Their children are of a type of beauty [illegible] striking and rare. Whoever in those years had the pleasing fortune to accept the hospitality of that brilliant man and of his beautiful wife must have returned forever the delightful image of that home. All that could combine to make home lovely was there. Reputation, converse with noble minds, such as fame draws around the hearthstone of its fortunate possessor, a charming companion, whose very soul kindled early in devotion in pure worship of her admired husband, children whose smiles were like the radiance of angels' eyes when turned toward the throne of God, and the rustle of whose garments were as graceful as the silent movement of forest birds when bathing in the holy Sabbath dawn—what more could Theodore Tilton have sought or wished?

Yet in his profound egotism he sought martyrdom. The martyrs only were truly great. He would link his name with some causes to-day odious, to-morrow glorified, and so after the cross wear the crown—as did Garrison, Wilberforce, Howard and the rest. He advocated miscegenation, but nobody mobbed him. He boasted in every speech of having been mobbed in anti-slavery days. Few remembered that mob. Now if he could but render himself odious by attacking the marriage relation, but striking a stalwart blow [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] he sincerely hoped would [illegible] him and he would be immortal. This was his ambition. And now his martyrdom has come—all he ever sought, and directly by the means he used, but of a character far more bitter than he expected; the inexorable penalty due a false doctrine, the eternal cross bears its crown, save one of thorns. During those years the writer, on one occasion, by a chance question turned the conversation upon Beecher, who was then among the daily visitors at Mr. Tilton's house. Is Mr. Beecher's outward life that which it seems to those who hear him? I have been at a loss to conceive how one whose conscience is so sensitive as Mr. Beecher's seems should boast himself to be the happiest man living. Deep moral sense oftener makes men sad.

Mr. Tilton answered greatly to the writer's surprise: "Mr. Beecher has a keen, intellectual discrimination on moral questions, but he is personally an epicure, a voluptuary, though of the most refined sort, who does nothing, not even his preaching and praying, from a sense of duty, but only for the pleasure it affords him. It happens to make him happier to preach than to raise horses; but if it made him happier to follow any other form of amusement he would pursue it. Doubtless when you heard him declare himself the happiest man living he felt so, but scores of times he has come to this house as to a den of refuge, thrown himself down on that sofa and groaned in misery. You would have thought him the veriest wretch alive."

"And what was the cause of his trouble?"

"It is chiefly domestic. His wife has no sympathy with his plans. She is a common place, matter of fact woman, who ought to have wedded a merchant—not the great Beecher. I have had my own difficulties with her, but those do not cloud my judgment. She has even followed me to the front door and ordered me out of her house, while Beecher stood at the top of the stairs and said: 'The old [illegible] whatever Mrs. Beecher says to you, remember that I am always your devoted friend.'"

"But I am surprised that you speak of Beecher as a voluptuary. I had thought him too unselfish and laborious for that."

"No; Beecher has no unselfishness. His tastes are esthetic and cultivated, and he is a busy man because his capabilities for joyous activity are various. He enjoys preaching, editing, art, [illegible] amusement, labor of certain kinds, and so on; but he is a voluptuary. He does everything that he enjoys, and only because he enjoys it. [illegible] [illegible] aesthetic [illegible]. If I want an article for the Independent, Beecher will state to his own ease to write it, not because it is anything he wants to say, but because I his friend need his help. Beecher never writes on that principle. He would promise the article, and if he found nothing more agreeable to do, he would write it; not otherwise."

"But Beecher is certainly industrious."

"No. He is lazy. He accomplishes a vast amount of what from many would require work. But he does it because in his case it only requires the vigorous play of his versatile powers. He prepares for his sermon on Sunday morning and afternoon. It is not work to muse for an hour over what one shall say for the next hour."

"But is he not charitable and generous?"

"All in the epicurean sense. He enjoys doing good, and gives as giving yields him pleasure."

A Lively Dispute.—Quite a lively dispute is going on between several Grangers at Fort Byron and the New York Central Railroad company. The Company are anxious to purchase the right of way in order to lay their new double track, but the owners of the particular section refuse to accept the terms offered. Thursday Superintendent Burrows, accompanied by about 200 men, headed by Trackmaster Barstow, proceeded to the spot to remove the fence on the land of A. A. Armstrong. Here they were met by some ten or fifteen farmers armed with old flint-lock muskets, pistols, rifles, shot-guns, pitchforks, hoe handles, or whatever could be made available for offense or defense. Trackmaster Barstow made the first movement from the center of the line of the attacking party, having been ordered by his commanding General, Superintendent Burrows, to dislodge a rail from the fence. It took all summer. Mr. Barstow laid violent hand on the rail, but he did not remove it. Instead he found himself standing on his head in the ditch, while [illegible] of course dancing on his brain. Nothing daunted, he again rallied and charged upon the offending rail. This time he retreated in as good order as a double somersault with lusty farmers as impelling power would allow. He declined to make any further attack, notwithstanding the emphatic orders of his superior officer. Subsequently warrants were sworn out for the offending Grangers, but the matter will probably be peaceably arranged.—[illegible]

Mrs. Partington's Mistake.—"My dear, where is my Morning and Evening Devotion?" asked Mr. Paul Partington, meaning a small book with that title, in which he some time since read.

"Here it is," said Mrs. Partington, producing from the closet a dark bottle, and setting it on the table with a clean glass. "Here it is, Paul."

He looked intently into her face to see if mischief were actuating her, but he found all there entirely serene. He would not destroy the pleasure of her satisfaction in having thus obliged him, so he refrained from explanation and partook.

Shall Fourth of July Celebrations be Abolished?—There is unquestionably a stronger public sentiment to-day than ever before of curtailing the dangerous demonstrations of the modern 4th of July. The bridge between Independence and Salem, near the former place, caught fire last Monday, but the flame was extinguished before much damage was done.

Elijah Burton, a subscriber at Peoria, says he would as leave be without a clean shirt on Sunday morning as the OREGONIAN. He wants to dispose of twenty good farm horses.

There are now about sixty persons stopping at the Warm Springs. They have a fiddler of their own and do their own dancing and cooking, and are having a splendid good time.

Gov. Grover has made the following appointments: M. H. Abbott of Pendleton, Umatilla county, and John Catlin (re-appointed) of Portland, Multnomah county, Notaries Public.

The teachers in the public schools of Salem the ensuing year are Howard G. Morris, J. T. Gregg, A. W. Lockhart, and Misses Clara A. Waite, Hutton, Sabin and Smith, and Mrs. Curl.

Mr. Hamilton has commenced work on the Dalles and Sandy wagon road, between the upper and middle landings at the Cascades, and intends to push it through as rapidly as possible.

A man stole Geo. Robinson's needle gun at LaGrande a few nights ago, but the lookout being sharp and suspicion pointed, the thief returned the gun the next night and went on his way rejoicing.

A large and elegantly mounted map of the State of Oregon, showing all lands belonging to the State, is now on exhibition at the office of the Secretary of State. It is 7x9 feet in size and is strictly reliable.

A little school teacher, who is at present rusticating at Astoria, in writing to a friend of hers in Salem, says: "I weighed 108 pounds when I arrived here, but there's no telling how much I'll be compelled to lug back with me."

The neighbors of Mr. Troy Shelley, of Wasco county, one day last week thought to give him an agreeable surprise, and as he had lumber on hand of which to build a house, they gathered at the place one morning, put the house together, the roof on, and moved the furniture in before night.

Mr. U. B. Scott, of Ironton, Pennsylvania, is building a light draught steamer at Canemah for carrying wheat and flour at dead low water through the Locks and Canal. The dimensions will be 140 feet in length, breadth of beam 30 feet, and 3½ for depth of hold. Mr. Scott claims that his boat will be the lightest draught steamer yet built in these waters, and will be ready for business in a few weeks.

The bridge now being built across the Willamette at Springfield will be of immense value to the people of the Forks, giving them access as it will to Eugene and the railroad. There will be two spans in the bridge of 95 feet each, one of 210 feet and two approaches of 100 feet each. It is the Smith truss patent, and Mr. A. S. Miller, the overseer, thinks it will be completed by the first of September. The company will then commence a bridge across the McKenzie, on the Albany road.

A letter to the Walla Walla Statesman from Wallowa valley, dated the 11th inst., says: "No Indians have made their appearance in the valley. They generally arrive here about the middle of July and remain from six weeks to two months. Joseph's band consists of sixty warriors. The military force now in the valley numbers 100 men, rank and file. It is hardly possible that there will be any difficulty, for the reason that, while Joseph is regarded as being a bad Indian, everyone considers him a fool, and as the odds are all against him the probabilities are that he will go on the Lapwai reserve."

Parties on the steamboat Success, going up the river last Monday, discovered a dead body floating in the river about half a mile above Lincoln, near Cooper's Landing. It was in a terribly decomposed state and almost devoid of clothing, it having to all appearance remained in the water for some time. An alarm was at once given to those on shore and a skiff was sent off and the body taken into it. It was unrecognizable, but is supposed to be the body of George Spong, who was drowned at the upper wharf in Salem on the 2d of March last. His hat, it will be remembered, was found near the spot and search instituted with no success, nothing having been heard of the missing man since. Where the body has been lodged since that time remains a mystery.

A Hint.—We commend the recent action of General Belknap to other warriors of the rebellion period, simply suggesting that the restitution of articles more valuable than books might be more acceptable. Belknap saved from the burning Capitol of Columbia, South Carolina, a copy of the rules of the House of Representatives and the Senate of South Carolina, bound in one volume with the various acts and resolutions containing standing orders and the Constitutions of the State and of the United States, and stamped "Hon. W. D. Porter, President of the Senate." This he intended to keep as a memento of the war, but having recently met Mr. Porter, he returned the book with this indorsement upon a fly leaf: "Taken from the Capitol of South Carolina, at Columbia, February 17, 1865, by William W. Belknap, General Commanding Fourth Division, Seventeenth Army Corps, Army of the Tennessee, and returned to William Porter, June 20, 1874, by William W. Belknap, Secretary of War."—Chicago Times.

Masonic Excursion.—A party of fifty Master Masons under the leadership of Robert Morris, Past Grand Master of Kentucky, will visit the Holy Land, Europe and Africa this summer. The corner stone of a new Masonic Hall will be laid in Jerusalem. The party will be entertained by the Masons of the East, and during thirty days will live in tents, visiting Gebal, Tyre, Hiram's Tomb, Baalbec, Damascus, Mount Hermon, the Sea of Galilee, Nazareth, Nablous, Bethel, the Dead Sea and River Jordan, Hebron and Joppa. Lodges will be held under the warrant of the Royal Solomon Mother Lodge of the city of Jerusalem.

Gen. Spinner's Quarrel with Mr. Bristow.—Washington, July 17.—A special says a serious quarrel has arisen between Treasurer Spinner and the acting Secretary of the Treasury, Conant. Spinner claims the right, under written orders from President Grant, to waive civil service rules in the appointment to his Bureau. Conant holds that the President's order does not override rules promulgated by the Civil Service Board, since the order was issued. The matter has been referred to Secretary Bristow and decided in favor of Conant, and Spinner takes the appeal to the President.

THE TERRITORIES.

Walla Walla cast 341 votes at her late city election.

An old lady at Walla Walla wove 1½ yards of carpet one day last week.

The boats have discontinued their trips to Lewiston for the season, but run to Wallula twice a week.

Water is getting so low in Mill creek, W. T., that some of the mills on that stream have been compelled to stop.

The Tribune says: "Beside bringing law into Utah, the Poland bill has also caused timely rains to fall upon the desert."

The Presbyterians held a prosperous camp-meeting last week on Touchet. About twenty persons united with the church.

The Nez Perces mine, Bingham District, Utah, is reported to have been sold recently for $400,000 to an English company.

A mud bath is being used at Warm Springs, Idaho, by a certain class of invalids. They could get it free in Webfoot in winter.

A school teacher at Wallula has got into trouble by gambling with a boy, the latter stealing from his employer to pay what Groves won.

The ordinance closing all places of business at Walla Walla on Sundays is strictly observed, and gives the town an air of perfect rest on the Sabbath.

The state of the people's health at Walla Walla is such as to encourage the doctors, and the latter thank nature for producing green apples, pears and cucumbers.

The Treasurer of Idaho Territory received from all sources during the quarter ending with June 9th, the sum of $2,783 62. That would not be hardly enough for the officers in Oregon.

The other day at Walla Walla, when the thermometer stood at 105° in the shade, a lunatic tried to sell a load of wood—no one would even talk about buying. If he had offered a load of ice he might have been mistaken for a sane man.

The Walla Walla Statesman, speaking of the crops in the eastern part of Washington Territory, says: "This season [illegible] to be unfavorable to agricultural pursuits. In some places it is grasshoppers, in others squirrels, and so between pests and a diminished acreage, the crop of this season will scarcely equal one half that of last year."

The Boise City Statesman says: "The Assessor returns $3,808 as all the money in the county, $4,050 of this amount is in this city, and $1,840 outside of the city in the county. Is it possible that we are doing business on so small an amount of money, or do the people fail to give it in? It is unnecessary for us to talk, other people can [illegible] their own comments on this showing."

Henry Ingles, living in Spring Valley, five miles south of Waitsburg, W. T., was burned out on the evening of Friday, the 10th, about 10 o'clock, losing everything, even the wearing apparel of the family, the inmates just making their escape. Two men named respectively Arthur Ingles and Horace Murphy, who were sleeping up stairs, made their escape by jumping out of the window and sliding down a pole.

At the Boise City election, held on the 10th inst., Thos. E. Logan was chosen Mayor; John Temp[illegible], H. C. Brinstetter, F. Dangel, John Hunton and J. Lawrence, Councilmen; A. G. Redway, Treasurer; and Mose Lyon, Marshal. All the offices were given to candidates on the Citizens ticket except one Councilman, Mr. Lawrence. There were 219 votes cast, being one more than was cast at the last city election.

The municipal election at Walla Walla resulted as follows: Mayor, James McAuliff; Councilmen—First Ward, F. P. Allen; Second Ward, tie vote between James Jones and Z. K. Straight; Third Ward, Wm. Kohlhauff; Fourth Ward, C. C. Ross; Recorder, O. P. Lacy, elected by one majority over J. D. Laman; Marshal, J. G. Justice; Treasurer, C. T. Thompson; Assessor, J. B. Thompson; Surveyor, A. Zimer.

The Gold Hill Mining Company in Boise county is working about 50 men, and the mill is pounding away with as good success as usual. The Hawley or Idaho Company have purchased the Tom Hart mill, formerly located at the Lawyer ledge, and now have it moved on to the Iowa ledge, and are putting it up with the intention of having it running by the 10th of next month. They have 1,000 or 1,500 tons of ore out and have a small company of men stoping and taking out more rock.

The Salt Lake Tribune of the 10th inst. has this item: On Sunday there was a little exhibition at the Tabernacle not set down in the bills of that menagerie. A Saint from over the briny deep followed a priest who had been sent abroad to preach the Latter-day doctrine, and in his spiritual moments had taken advantage of the sister of his English brother, and seduced her. The object of the brother's visit to this country was to take revenge on the priestly seducer, and on Sunday found him at the Tabernacle, when he proceeded to chastise him in a summary manner, but was interfered with before he had got in many good licks.

UNGALLANT SAYINGS.

The London tradesman who advertises himself as "breeches maker to the Queen," drawers it mild.—Chicago Times.

When a Chicago man takes a young woman out riding he doesn't need a dash board. Her foot answers every purpose.

A beautiful incident of woman's love has just occurred in Liverpool. A woman, to shield her husband, who was charged with removing the end of her nose, swore that she bit it off herself.

Nothing hurts the feelings of a Vassar girl so much as to be told, in the presence of strangers at the breakfast table, that she must limit herself to thirty pancakes on this occasion.—Brooklyn Argus.

A little six year old daughter of a Rutland, Vt., clergyman watched Barnum's street parade with great interest, and finally said to her papa: "If I was a minister's little girl I could go to the circus, but I suppose I must set an example to the whole church now."

A correspondent wishes to know "if every woman is not to some extent a kleptomaniac." For our part, we have never been willing to admit that there is constitutionally any such mania as kleptomania; but, in regard to the propensity to which he refers, we may say that the best authorities are agreed that no lady can be left alone in the presence of a box of face powder without trying a little, just to see how it looks.—Brooklyn Argus.

Whittier on the Centennial.—Whittier writes as follows to a friend in Philadelphia concerning the Centennial: "I quite agree with thee about that great commemoration of the Fourth of July, 1876. It ought to be worthy of the occasion. But at the same time, in the state of our finances, there should be no unnecessary expenditures. There ought to be no local jealousies, and the fact that the interest of the event centers in Philadelphia should not make the East and West and South less willing to aid the celebration. There is nothing sectional in the Declaration of Independence, and its celebration should partake of its universality. I am glad to hear indirectly that thy health is better. I want all the old guard of freedom to hold on as long as I do. I deeply feel the loss of Chase, Greeley, Hale, Tappan and Sumner. Will the next generation have men like them?"

A Practical Joke.—A telegram from Dubuque, Iowa, mentions the arrival of a stranger from the country in that town a few days ago, and describes the result of his innocent inquiry for the Marshal's office. He was directed to that officer's headquarters, and told that if he did not find the gentleman in to step into the next room, and he would see a rope, to pull that, and the Marshal would respond. He followed instructions to the letter, and, not finding the officer in his office, the citizens were soon alarmed by the clamorous ringing of the fire bell. Engine and hose turned out as quickly as possible and posted to headquarters to ascertain where the fire was located, and found the stranger there. The fireman demanded where the fire was, and on his answering he knew of no fire, but wanted to see the Marshal, one of the firemen was so irate that he pitched into the stranger and gave him a sound thrashing. The stranger proceeded to a justice's office to take out a warrant for the assault, but was informed that if he did the firemen would bring suit for giving the false alarm, which is liable to a $50 fine, so he decided not to sue, and when last heard from was looking for the man who told him how to find the Marshal.

THE LAST RECRUIT

Harper's Weekly is the latest accession to the ranks of independent journalism and its pictorial department is the last department that strikes off the shackles of party. After referring briefly to some of the chief circumstances that would seem to render the field of independent journalism rather uninviting such as the persistent and malignant opposition of most of the men now occupying high places in the Government the New York Tribune says:

And yet recruits come in. There are more independent newspapers in the country to-day by several than before Congress met last December. They speak out much more freely, they are if not less tolerant of the faults and shortcomings of their opponents certainly less disposed to cover up and apologize for the blunders and crimes of their party friends. Indeed with all the wholesale abuse which such journals still receive from men in high places the distinction of being independent and of being recognized as independent, is coming to be eagerly sought after. Only one or two newspapers outside of Washington and those very much of the character of the Washington organs—though the statement may be libelous—venture to proclaim their open relations though many of them continue to sneer at the so-called independent press. The title of independent journalist is getting to be quite honorable. Several newspapers are coming forward in some respects to claim it. The last claimant is Mr Thomas Nast of Harper's Journal of Civilization. He comes to it with and we presume as an explanation in some sort of the full page cartoon on the first page of the current issue of that journal the editor says distinctly Mr Nast belongs to the independent press. The cartoon represents Columbia at the door of the Senate Chamber turning half round and pointing angrily at President Grant who sits crouching in his chair with a look such as Nast's pencil has never given him before. On the table is a packet marked "Richardson as Judge of Court of [illegible]" on the floor another inscribed "Shepherd rejected by the Senate by an overwhelming majority, now District Gov" Washington D C. The legend runs: "Don't let us hear any more of this nonsense. It is a good trait to stand by one's friends, but—" The cartoon itself will be no less a surprise to the readers of the Journal than the accompanying statement that Mr Nast belongs to the independent press.

The [illegible] Civilization has been distinguished for its conservative habits. It did not come into the support of the war for the Union till quite late but when it did take the popular side it did good service for the cause. It has been somewhat slow coming into the ranks of the Independent Press. Its editorial page has had the smack of independence since Mr Curtis discovered some months ago that the President's Civil Service Reform promises were empty and false but the pictorial department has been a rifle to the Administration up to the present issue. The thorough change it has now undergone is significant not only of a change in public sentiment toward the Administration but of the increasing favor with which independent journalism is beginning to be regarded.

The Tribune had predicted, some time previously that Mr Nast's genius would not continue long cramped within the narrow limits of partyism. As Mr Curtis the editor of the Weekly had got his eyes opened through the conduct of the President with relation to the Civil Service Reform it was thought Mr Nast could not long remain blind and deaf to facts that were patent everywhere. The Tribune's prediction has been proved correct.

Another year will bring about still further change in the status of newspapers unless we greatly mistake. The leading party journals are now practically independent of the parties they claim to represent. They speak less disparagingly every day of the professedly independent press and one after another they come out boldly and avow themselves independent of party or political organization organs of party opinion when there are issues of importance pending but not organs of party in any sense implying closer relationship than this. Before another twelve months, unless the tide in the affairs of the newspaper world shall in the interim begin to flow in some other direction than in which it is now setting no first class journal in the United States will be willing to confess itself a party organ in any different sense from that in which the principal independent papers may at the present time, be considered party organs. Already it has almost come to this and all the moral forces of the period unite to hasten the end of the revolution.

BEECHER MAKES AN UNFORTUNATE BLUNDER.

In all probability the six men named by Mr Beecher to act as judges in the investigation of the charges against him are of the very best and most conscientious. They are selected, three from Plymouth Church and three from Plymouth Society. Over both church and society Mr Beecher is pastor and has been during all the time the quarrel between him and Mr Tilton has been going on. It is hardly likely they would have remained in the church and society, if they had not felt pretty well convinced in their own minds of the innocence of their pastor. So it turns out that six men who, whatever be their standing, are in the very nature of things biased against Mr Tilton and in favor of Mr Beecher are to be judges between them and not only so but all these six men, are selected by Mr Beecher himself, without the right being allowed to the adverse party either to interrogate them concerning their qualifications or to challenge any of them. Not thus do courts of justice try questions between man and man. It may work no wrong in this case, but the principle is unfair and any case wherein it produces just results must be an exceptional one. Prejudice and partiality are conditions of human nature in the church as well as out of it, and Plymouth Church and Society are in no wise different from other similar bodies in this respect.

Should it be determined to publish in full the evidence given before this Commission as well as the conclusions that shall be reached the effect may be to remove from the public mind the suspicion of unfairness that will naturally attach to the proceedings of a court constituted in so extraordinary a manner. But if the conclusions alone shall be published and if those conclusions are in favor of Mr Beecher not one intelligent reader out of every three will allow those conclusions to affect his own judgment to any appreciable extent and the suspicion which now unfortunately rests upon Mr Beecher will be rather aggravated than allayed. We have somehow felt all along that Mr Beecher would yet come forth without a smell of fire upon his garments but he cannot do this unless as an antidote to the prejudice created against his cause by the manner of choosing his jurors he allow the whole proceeding to be given to the world. The verdict of a packed jury may be a technical vindication but it cannot be a moral one.

THE INDIANA BOURBONS.

The Democrats of Indiana met in State Convention at Indianapolis on the 1[illegible] of the present month and organized by the election of Governor T A Hendricks as President with the other officers usual in such bodies. The platform of which the following synopsis was telegraphed to the California press was adopted unanimously:

It [illegible] the present administration as untrustworthy, [illegible] of the governments of States using State officers for party purposes, squandering moneys through the Department of Justice in North Carolina, Arkansas and other States, appointing corrupt men to office and removing upright ones who have fought corruption and appointing [illegible] of a corrupt [illegible] for the District [illegible].

The Republican party must be held responsible for the acts of the administration, for the frauds in the Sanborn contracts and the oppression of Southern whites.

The Convention asks the people to entrust the Democratic party with the administration of the State and country upon the following principles: A strict construction of the Constitution of the United States and its amendments, the enforcement of its laws, a tariff for revenue, condemnation of all gratuities and the [illegible] of retroactive salaries, State or National, condemnation of the attempt of the last Congress to muzzle the press, security of every citizen in the country equal protection from the laws without violating the principle of local self-government or interfering with the social customs of the people, opposition to high fees and salaries either in the State or the United States, and a reduction of National and State salaries to that degree that the people may be relieved from the high rates of State and local taxation.

The Convention favors the redemption of five-twenty bonds in greenbacks according to the law under which they were issued and the repeal of the Act which assumed to consider them payable exclusively in gold. Favor the repeal of the national banking law, the substitution of greenbacks for national bank currency and a return to specie payment as soon as the business or interest of the country permit. Favors such adjustment of the volume of currency as will subserve the industrial and commercial requirements of the country, and a liberal system of education alike to whites and blacks but oppose the mixture of races in the public schools and institutions.

The Convention views with abhorrence the attempt on the part of the Federal Government to take control of all schools and colleges, churches, hotels, railroads, steamboats, theaters and grave yards for establishing Negro equality and compelling white [illegible] to grant equal social and political rights to the colored man as proposed in the Civil Rights bill and [illegible] penalties and fines.

The Convention arraigns Senators Morton and Pratt before the State for their vote favoring the above atrocious measure and declares that that known as the Baxter bill has proved a failure and is of doubtful constitutionality and restrains intemperance less than a judicious license law therefore its repeal is favored.

It will be asked by persons who are in the least given to asking questions upon such matters, what there is among the specifications in that clause setting forth particularly the reasons why the people should entrust the Democratic party with the administration &c that any other party in existence or conceivable might not claim with equal propriety. "Strict construction of the constitution," "enforcement of the law," "tariff for revenue," and the like all the way through not omitting the usual generalized clap trap about economy:

> [illegible] observations on the case
> That savor much of common place
> And all the world [illegible]

The next paragraph offers something a little more pointed. The Convention, it seems was careful not to express the opinion that the leading propositions in this division of their platform would inspire an extraordinary degree of confidence in the party. In that they exhibited most excellent judgment. The people of the States and of the United States long ago condemned the scheme of paying the public debt in the Micawber fashion, i e by giving a new note. And as to substituting greenbacks for National Bank currency it is not very easy to perceive wherein the Government would gain anything by the change while upon considerations of convenience the weight of argument is against the change.

Then we have the inevitable [illegible] of Democratic eloquence on the subject of negro equality. We had hoped never again to hear the Democratic voice frantically appealing to the American voter with that argument, despairing: "How would you like to have your daughter marry a nigger?" but it is evidently coming. The Democrats of Indiana have purposely laid out their ground with the intention of pressing this conundrum upon the minds of Indiana voters in the campaign. If the Democratic party is ever to learn anything or forget anything, in order to bring itself abreast of the age, it is high time for it to begin.

The manifesto of the Union Republican Congressional Committee [illegible] opposes the leaving of the question of freights and fares on railways in the hands of the States. [illegible] the State [illegible]. Now if this right is conceded we should be extremely gratified to see the course of reasoning by which the Committee have arrived at the conclusion that it is impolitic to let the power rest where the constitution has placed it. And it would be also interesting to know by what [illegible] this State is to be deprived of the power it possesses under the constitution. There are probably some constitutional [illegible] on the Union Republican Congressional Committee who could impart information on this [illegible]. There is no [illegible] necessity [illegible] though we must admit the situation of political affairs seems to present a case of overwhelming necessity of some kind.

A CONSTITUTION—[illegible] Mackey, Judge of the Court which discharged Moses the robber Governor of South Carolina on the ground that a Governor could not be tried for larceny, had an interview with the President. Grant showed considerable interest in the political condition of South Carolina and when Judge Mackey explained [illegible] the condition of affairs in that State Grant [illegible] "Why don't you convict Moses?" The Chicago Tribune comments on this remark as follows:

Grant repudiates Moses as who would not? In a personal interview with Judge Mackey the President said sharply "Why don't you convict Moses?" And Mackey might have retorted "Why did you nominate Shepherd?" However Moses and his crowd should be summarily dealt with by the people and that Grant is on the side of reform in this case is gratifying. His [illegible] Moses must be unloaded.

On the night of July [illegible] a cyclone passed over the city of Savannah Georgia which uprooted trees unroofed houses and destroyed buildings that were not strongly constructed. The grand stand at the fair grounds was destroyed. The track of the storm was narrow but its force was terrific.

The Republican Convention of the Third Congressional District of Louisiana has resolved in favor of Grant for the third term. That is trump number two.

THE BEECHER TILTON AFFAIR

The Brooklyn Argus states that when Beecher produced his statement [illegible] writing [illegible] with the remark that it was the paper he intended to lay before the Investigating Committee. That friend read it carefully and returned it to Beecher saying "I advise you not to present that paper to the committee." Beecher asking the reason of such advice was answered "Because Tilton's statement will shiver it to pieces." On further consultation and comparison of views Beecher determined to follow the advice of his friend. Accordingly Beecher's statement was not presented to the Committee last night but instead a statement by him [illegible] in which he announced that he had not prepared any evidence to submit to the body.

New York, July 16—The Brooklyn Eagle says Beecher's statement is ready and will be submitted [illegible]. Those who have seen it say it is a straightforward, frank document and explains the motive of the trouble with Tilton. He denies that he ever made an improper [illegible] to Mrs Tilton and concludes with an absolute denial of all other slanders against him. He acknowledges that Mrs Tilton complained to him of her husband. She spoke of his unfaithfulness and [illegible] instances. She spoke of his going with strange women and begged him to advise her as a man and a minister. After due consideration and with hesitancy he advised her if she felt that she could not reclaim her husband to leave him for a time. Beecher felt he had made a mistake in giving this advice and thought perhaps it led to the [illegible] of his own generous nature Tilton would have abandoned the strange women after whom he had been running and return to the peace of his own household. In this condition of mind he apologized to Tilton for what he had done and promised to extend to him the right hand of fellowship in the future and bury the past utterly. Tilton's forthcoming statement will it is said disappoint the public greatly. The supposition has been that he would undertake to prove that Beecher had done him a grave personal injury and that he would attempt to show that Beecher outraged not Tilton's but some other household. He reasons in this way: "My proposition is Beecher is not a fit man to occupy a Christian pulpit. What Beecher has done to me is my own affair. Public interest is properly in my main proposition and in support of it I submit the following statement" etc. The document there is good reason for staying will alter the character of two other women besides Mrs Tilton. The consistency of Tilton's prosecution will be best judged by the public when the statements of both are compared with his promises.

CITY.

HEALTH.—Hot weather is again upon us and the season for chills, fevers and malarial disorders has arrived. The miasma which comes from the marshes and low lands adjacent to the city, from which the water is receding, or has already receded, and poisons the atmosphere, cannot well be avoided, but the inevitable effects upon the human system can measurably be [illegible] or modified. Personal cleanliness and the use of disinfectants will contribute much towards securing good health and in warding off many of the [illegible] incident to this season of the year. Back yards should be clean [illegible] and cellars [illegible] Next [illegible] should be [illegible] [illegible] is as clean as possible [illegible] removal of garbage and decaying vegetation. A [illegible] precaution in this regard may be the means of preserving health intact and save an expensive doctor's bill. Still greater care and attention should be observed, as the system of sewerage in the city is so inadequate. In this connection we cannot forbear to mention the [illegible] condition of the wharves and stores [illegible] the river fronting the city. Conglomerated masses of all kinds of [illegible] and garbage are deposited near the bank, or [illegible] allowed [illegible] The annual spring and summer [illegible] about this [illegible] All kinds of [illegible] are driven [illegible] the [illegible] under wharves and along the bank of the river where they are landed and when the water recedes are [illegible] high and dry, where [illegible] the [illegible] of July or August [illegible] they become masses of putrescence offensive to the smell and disgusting to the sight. If a little more attention was bestowed by the proper authorities in this direction the sanitary condition of the city would be greatly benefited and our citizens would enjoy a greater immunity from sickness. The good results which would be certain to flow from such a wise measure would abundantly compensate for the cost of the experiment.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION.—We learn that a movement is now on foot among the capitalists of this city and State having for its object the construction of a bridge across the Willamette. A call for a meeting of those who are interested in this very important project will soon be issued. It is stated on what is deemed reliable authority that the sum of about [illegible]0,000 has been [illegible] toward the construction of the [illegible] bridge, [illegible] conditions can be secured. [illegible] effort is being made to awaken a lively interest in the matter, and effect co-operation in the movement. Circulars will be forwarded at an early day to a number of prominent and wealthy men on both sides of the river, and earnest appeals made for the most liberal subscriptions. The question of constructing a bridge over the Willamette at Portland [illegible] more or less for the last five years and [illegible] the project has not assumed a tangible form. [illegible] the importance of the project as well as the credit of the [illegible] this last movement may result in something more definite than mere talk.

CLEARING AWAY THE RUINS.—For the last week a number of men have been engaged in clearing away the charred debris at the scene of the recent fire. The salt is being removed from the partially destroyed sacks which inclosed it and separated. Those portions of the salt which were more exposed to the intense heat are being carefully removed from the [illegible] damaged and placed in sacks. The undamaged portions are likewise being sacked. By the last of the present week the process of [illegible] will have been finished, and the damage sustained by the fire can be accurately determined. One thing is certain, the quantity of salt damaged by the fire will be less than what was at first estimated. There is a very small percentage of the salt which will be rendered wholly useless.

A GENERAL ROW.—About 7 o'clock last evening a general row occurred at a house situated near the corner of Third and C streets in which lives a man named Morrissey. During the afternoon a number of persons gathered at his house, and whisky was freely used. A might [illegible] have been expected the affair terminated in a general row. A man named Jones was severely beaten about the head and face by two persons calling themselves Barker and Phillips. Chief [illegible] was notified of the row, and repaired to the scene with all haste. Both Barker and Phillips were arrested and taken to jail. Phillips, on depositing $40, was released, while Barker was committed to jail. This morning the matter will be inquired into at the Police Court.

COURT MATTERS.—Judge M. P. Deady, who has been in San Francisco for the past six weeks or more personally superintending the printing of the new Code and reading the proofs, will be a passenger on the steamer which leaves for Portland next Saturday. He will hold a term of the U. S. Circuit Court, commencing on the 10th prox. On the second [illegible] which will suit the following week Judge Stephen [illegible] Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, will sit [illegible] Portland. As required by law that each Associate Judge shall visit his District Circuit once in two years. Judge Field comes to hold a short term of court [illegible] the docket [illegible] He will return on [illegible] few days.

TORN AWAY.—The old wooden tenement which [illegible] the corner of [illegible] and Second streets for so many years [illegible] at length compelled to give way for improvements more substantial and pretentious. On Monday a number of workmen began to tear away this old building. This was found to be so difficult [illegible] as the wear and tear of the [illegible] for the past twelve years had about used the building up. Mr. Dekum, who owns the ground occupied by the stable, proposes to erect the present season on the site a brick structure. Thus disappears another old landmark, relic of by-gone days, to make way for the onward strides of improvement.

APPROVED.—At length, after considerable unavoidable delay, Mr. Fred. Harbaugh, County Treasurer elect, filed his official bond in the Clerk's office yesterday. He was required to give bonds in the sum of $50,000 in gold coin with approved sureties. The bond was examined by the County Court and accepted. Mr. Harbaugh having qualified will enter upon the duties of the office at once. Mr. Wm. Masters retiring.

SERENADE TO HON. J. W. NESMITH.

He Gives an Account of His Stewardship

AND ANTICIPATES THE DAY IN WHICH HE WILL [illegible] — [illegible] DISCUSSED — [illegible] TARIFF [illegible]

At [illegible] o'clock last evening a [illegible] number of the personal friends of Hon. J. W. Nesmith, Representative in Congress from Oregon, [illegible] at the [illegible] Hotel to tender that gentleman a [illegible] first address since his return from Washington City. [illegible] was in attendance and their music attracted quite a large crowd. Shortly after 9 o'clock [illegible] Mr. Nesmith appeared on the balcony [illegible] the following remarks:

Mr. Nesmith's Speech.

My Fellow Citizens: [illegible] to return to you my sincere thanks for this testimonial to-night [illegible] my return from the National Capital [illegible] everything [illegible] kindness [illegible] the people of Oregon [illegible] my only regret is that I have not [illegible] thing to deserve [illegible] recognize you as my masters [illegible] your representative at the national capital [illegible] recognize your right [illegible] report of the [illegible] of my stewardship. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] I [illegible] given you [illegible] in Congress [illegible] however it would be proper for me to speak with [illegible] familiarity of my own labors in that body. And if in doing so I shall frequently use the personal pronoun I [illegible] bering that [illegible] the [illegible] of a communication between yourself and myself.

First of all [illegible] to accomplish what I regard as a measure of the greatest importance to you as citizens of Portland and of this State, I allude to

THE PORTLAND, DALLES AND SALT LAKE RAILROAD.

[Cheers.] In behalf of this I employed my best endeavors. Having been in Congress before, having voted [illegible] appropriations for those great enterprises, the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific Railroads, and having been a member of [illegible] committee who had to do with the [illegible] of [illegible] works, I was in a measure committed to the support of this project.

Now in considering this subject it should be borne in mind that Oregon is the only State not reached by a continuous line of railway from Washington City. There is great need, then, of the construction of this new line. I saw it in an early day before there were a hundred white men in Willamette Valley, having been on this very ground before a stick of timber had been erected—before a white man had camped on the site of your beautiful city. From the early days the process of development has been slow, but I have watched it all. I have watched patiently for thirty [illegible] years to see this State so salubrious in climate, rich and varied in its resources, take that rank to which she is destined. When I went to Washington last fall I found that

[illegible]

In the early part of the session I introduced [illegible] bills. Soon after I received a letter from Col. Chapman urging the importance of this measure—the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad. Eventually the bill now pending was introduced—in the Senate by Mr. Mitchell, in the House by myself. I notice that the papers have universally spoken of this as "Mr. Mitchell's bill." While I do not wish to detract from the just due of any one, it is but simple justice to say that it is Col. Chapman's bill. He drew it up, enforced it upon the attention of Congress, labored for it with indefatigable zeal, and to him must be ascribed a goodly portion of the credit which attaches to it. [Applause.]

It is true, fellow citizens, that my relations socially and politically with a portion at least of the delegation from Oregon had been of a peculiar character. On my arrival in Washington I met Senator Mitchell. I thought that in order to properly represent the State of Oregon and to further her interests there should be some kind of an understanding between us. He agreed with me in this and a treaty was held. This treaty provided that in all business matters appertaining to the State and people we should work together in harmony. To that extent there were to be kindly relations between us. So far as I know Senator Mitchell has observed that treaty. I know I have.

So the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad bill as I have said was drawn up by Col. Chapman, introduced in the Senate by Mr. Mitchell, in the House by myself. I would like to have you understand that the House of Representatives consists of three hundred members each having a pet measure. It is a vast body, all the members of which are [illegible] to [illegible] the floor at the same time. [illegible] it is almost impossible to obtain a hearing. A great part of the House work is done in committee. I went before the committee having the bill in charge and I [illegible] to secure a favorable report. I represented to them the vastness of the country through which the road was to pass, its resources, [illegible] necessity of having railroad communication with the East. I showed to them that it passed through a country six times as large as New England, that the building of the road would settle the [illegible] and give us a direct communication with [illegible] would bring your metropolis much nearer to [illegible] than is San Francisco. Knowing the people, the climate and the wants of the country I urged upon the Committee the overshadowing importance of giving it [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] the Committee.

[illegible] REPORT.

[illegible] fellow citizens [illegible] a great point gained. The bill is now on the calendar of Congress, ready to be taken up at the next session. And while I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, I believe the bill will pass at the next session, that the road will be constructed, and [illegible] will very soon be able to pass to New York in one half the time now consumed. But I have no time to elaborate on these matters. My record is before you. [illegible] upon it [illegible] without a [illegible]

As to the construction of the road under the provisions of this bill I have no personal knowledge. I am neither [illegible] nor have I at any time been concerned in railway building. But I am informed by gentlemen who are in every way qualified to judge [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] continuous line of railway from this city to New York. [Applause.] As to the services before committee [illegible] the delegation from Oregon I desire to say that we worked in harmony [illegible] Kelly, who [illegible] State [illegible] the [illegible] of the bill. Your fellow citizen Col. Chapman is entitled to much more credit [illegible] of the delegation [illegible] [illegible] indefatigable ardor and persistence [illegible] deserved [illegible] It was understood that [illegible] the Senate [illegible] through the other House of Congress. You [illegible] now that I am in the West [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] Oregon was the only State which secured the [illegible] of public moneys for [illegible]

[illegible]

To not exactly mean political or party support—what impedes and hinders your Representative in Congress. How much political [illegible] in the House has this vast area of the north west—an empire in itself?

A SINGLE VOTE!

Our political weakness reminds me of the [illegible] of the Irishman to the excavation [illegible] "Your arms are long, ye can [illegible] a great deal, but ye can't vote!" I am told [illegible] that in this vast domain of which I speak there are several Territories and that they have delegates on the floor of the House but [illegible] however much personal influence they may wield possess no vote. Judge McFadden and John Hailey are both [illegible] hard working men. They rendered me valuable assistance and kindly encouragement in my [illegible]

Another subject of which I must speak is

THE [illegible] WAR CLAIMS.

In the early part of the session I introduced a bill providing for the payment of these claims and went through the Military Committee. You who have lived long in the frontier know the impracticability of getting appropriations to pay such claims. You will recollect the past experience of this State in this regard. [illegible] I am able to state that all just claims against the Government incurred during the [illegible] in the Modoc country will now in all probability be paid. Under the bill General [illegible] has been appointed to come to this State and adjust these claims. General [illegible] is an old officer of the army. You will remember that he was here in 184[illegible] and that [illegible] company to go to Mexico and occupy the posts along the Gulf. This was during the Cayuse war. Gov. Abernethy objected to the taking of so many men out of the State at a time when their assistance in the general defense was sorely needed and so General [illegible] [illegible] the project. I can say for him that he is a gentleman of established character [illegible] and I believe, fellow citizens, that he will do ample justice in passing upon these claims.

Another subject of an unpleasant personal character is the effort I made to induce Government to indemnify the widows and orphans of those who were slaughtered in the Modoc depredations. In this work I encountered powerful opposition from those gentlemen known as the Peace Commissioners—the God and morality men who believe that all the outrages perpetrated on our frontiers are instigated or committed by white men. My sympathies were all on the other side. During well nigh 40 years of frontier life I have had ample opportunity to become acquainted with the wrongs to which you are subject. I believe that allegiance to the Government and protection by the Government are inseparable duties. The American flag is a guarantee of that protection to the dutiful citizen. And no matter over what inch of soil that flag waves, there extends the might and power of the United States to protect and defend the humblest citizen of the land. [Applause.]

I was defeated for the time. My bill did not pass. But I will never give it up. I will never yield the point. I have studied the subject thoroughly, and I believe I have collated all the laws and all the authorities on this subject, and I do not despair of ultimate success.

In God's name what interests have these fathers on the frontiers who carry their homes [illegible] into hostile regions

[illegible] PHILANTHROPISTS AND RAPACIOUS HORDES.

O [illegible]—what interest have they in inciting [illegible] in provoking murder and rapine? They have no provision to sell to the Government. They have no designs on the national treasury. But for all is at stake, and peace to them means life, happiness, fortune—all! But I cannot further dwell on this subject.

I have also introduced a bill for the purpose of turning the entire Indian Department over to the military. That is where the control of the Indians belongs. These same peace gentlemen of which I have spoken, have told me that what the Indians want is tracts and Bibles. I told them that what they want is muskets and balls! [Applause.] I tell you, fellow citizens, there is no department in which so much peculation is done by men whose profession is piety and loyalty and whose practice is plunder—men who carry the flag in one hand and steal from the public treasury with the other! I wish to say in this connection that in my labors in this particular I had the support of General Grant, who testified though reluctantly before the Military Committee. I also had the aid and encouragement of all the delegations from the various Territories. I believed and urged that the troops should be withdrawn from the Southern States and sent to our frontiers, not alone because in the South they are used to uphold a tyrannical rule over the oppressed people of that section, but on the ground of economy as well. We all know that the method of conducting campaigns against hostile Indians with [illegible] volunteer force [illegible] barbarity and [illegible] is the most expensive method of prosecuting war. For these reasons, fellow citizens, I was

[illegible] TO ANY REDUCTION OF THE ARMY.

Not [illegible] I am attached to the army in the [illegible] but because the men of whom it is [illegible] by whom it is officered were educated and paid to be [illegible] More over it would be unjust to turn those gallant men from the army, from the profession to which they have been trained [illegible] the [illegible] of civil life [illegible] which they are unaccustomed.

Among the prominent measures which occupied the [illegible] session of Congress was

THE FINANCE BILL.

I have [illegible] it was a wise conclusion of the people [illegible] to stick to a metallic currency. The Eastern States are flooded with a paper currency. [illegible] fluctuations [illegible] twenty [illegible] [illegible] not [illegible] [illegible] the East. I [illegible] when I got back here to my [illegible] all my [illegible] serves the National Government after back [illegible] [Laughter.] I sold my greenback at 8[illegible] cents and to-day I learn they are worth 90 cents.

When I reached the National Capital as I have said the East was suffering from a great panic. A single bank had broken, yet the country was all [illegible] with apprehension of grey calamities impending. The First National Bank of Washington City controlled by that eminent Christian statesman Jay Cooke had suspended. The people of the East were trembling on the verge of pandemonium as they believed. Whenever the bill proposing inflation of the national currency came up I voted steadily against it. My colleague, Senator Mitchell, voted [illegible] [illegible] he thought [illegible] right.—[Laughter.]

The question of

THE TARIFF.

Also came up. I voted steadily against the bill looking to an increase of the rates, and I believe in doing so I represented the trust interests of the State of Oregon. The protective tariff of which we hear so much is gotten up not for the purpose of bringing money into the coffers of the Government, but to protect the Eastern manufacturer. Everything consumed here comes from the East [illegible] pays tribute to him. Thus $500,000 is paid annually by the consumers under this infamous system and [illegible] only [illegible] of the national treasury. [illegible] enrich the [illegible] If it were in my power I would wipe out every [illegible] and I [illegible] [illegible] This [illegible] the [illegible] labor—

[illegible] the [illegible] manufacturer. [illegible] the [illegible] with [illegible] and barren fields [illegible] wealth [illegible] [illegible] fortunes of those [illegible] that we are [illegible] to bear our [illegible]

[illegible] Yes gentlemen I would [illegible] the whole question [illegible] where you can buy the cheapest and [illegible] you can sell the dearest. [illegible]

THE CENTENNIAL [illegible]

I understand I have been [illegible] by [illegible] one in this State [illegible] for present appropriation of $3,000,000 looking to an ultimate appropriation of $10,000,000 [illegible] Fourth of [illegible] to be a day [illegible] It should be [illegible] every [illegible] citizen. [illegible] [illegible] of money [illegible] or a sectional celebration at Philadelphia. And I told the ardent supporters of this scheme when they asked me if I did not think it a good thing, "Yes gentlemen it is a very good thing. But if the people of Philadelphia want to celebrate the day in good style let them foot the bills." The gentlemen who voted against my bill to aid the suffering widows and orphans of those settlers who were butchered by the Modocs were the men who wanted $3,000,000 for the Centennial. And when Mr. Kelley of Pennsylvania came to me and solicited my vote I said to him:

[illegible] FOR DEFENSE [illegible] NOT A CENT FOR TRIBUTE.

[illegible] told that I misrepresented the State on this subject. I cannot believe it. I have no compliment to make on this subject though

CONCLUSION.

I was sent to Congress by your magnanimity. I come back to you with clean hands. I have been mixed up in no Back Pay Grab no Credit Mobilier nor Sanborn and Jayne contracts in no [illegible] of [illegible] clings to my garments. I return to you with my commission pure and unsullied as the day in which you placed it in my hands. The day approaches [illegible] I shall resign it to you and return to that obscurity from which I was summoned at your call. And now, friends and fellow citizens, I bid you a very kind Good Night!

[illegible]

[illegible] of [illegible]!

SLEPT WITH HIS SPURS ON

Yes, said the old man with a smile, I remember one time in particular while prospecting with an old friend about twenty years ago. We were traveling [illegible] and came across a tavern one night about [illegible] o'clock. [illegible] tired and hungry [illegible] as [illegible] our supper and something warm [illegible] for we took [illegible] down [illegible] our room. On [illegible] we found the [illegible] which was all [illegible] occupied by two strangers who were both snoring lustily. The [illegible] of the other two beds in the room did not surprise us as in backwoods taverns there were frequently three beds in a room. We undressed and just as I was going to blow out the light my friend who [illegible] I [illegible] the foot of one of the strangers sticking through the bed clothes at the foot of the bed. With a suppressed chuckle he motioned me to hold on a moment, he got quietly out of bed, and going to where the stranger's boots were he took off a huge sharp Mexican spur and carefully adjusted it to the bare heel of the unconscious stranger. With no heraudible chuckle as he thought of the consequences that would follow when the stranger drew in his foot he got back into bed and I blew out the light and followed him. He soon managed to get a long straw from the bed and reached over and tickled the stranger's foot. He instantly drew his legs up until his knees almost touched his chin. In doing this he drew the spur the whole length of his bed fellow's leg making a bad scratch. The victim uttered a yell and sprang out of bed with a muttered exclamation that I [illegible] not make out and then he commenced a wild dance around the room with his nether garment under his arm and making frantic efforts to dislocate his neck or to see how badly he was hurt all the while making exclamations that would have made a big gorgon with a Saratoga trunk on his shoulder turn green with envy. The innocent cause of this trouble had been awakened at the first yell of the victim and in straightening his legs out, scratched himself most unmercifully. He did not yell nor say bad words but he jumped out of bed and made for his friend with the purpose of taking revenge I supposed but he hadn't taken two steps before he jabbed the spur into his leg again. The landlord then appeared with a light, followed by half the boarders in the house and inquired what the matter was. An examination brought to light the spur which explained the matter. The stranger looked sheepishly at the spur then at his scratch, and finally examined his boot, and with a sickly smile said "Well boys, I have lived all my life among people who wear spurs but I never before saw a man who could pull off his boots and leave his spur on his [illegible] I'll try it in the morning."

COST OF SUNDAY OPERA

(Compiled from Examiner and Chronicle by the Philadelphia Press.)

A first class quartet with an organist costs from $6 000 to $10,000.

It costs something to have a fashionable choir. An ordinary quartet costs $2 500.

A good tenor singer, soprano, or contralto commands readily $1,000. Some sopranos are paid $3 000.

Warren, of St Thomas Church stands at the head of choir leaders. He has $10 000 a year salary and a house.

Grace Church pays its musical conductor $4 000 a year. Out of this sum he hires all the help he needs and pays himself.

One female singer in the city has $3 000 for morning and afternoon service and $1 000 extra for singing in the evening in another church.

Trinity Church, though very economical, pays $10 000 a year for its music. It has a boy choir of thirty members. These are paid a stated and receive a complete musical education.

Many of our fashionable congregations are dispensing with choirs altogether and are calling in the aid of a precentor. But this style of music has its serious drawbacks.

The First Presbyterian Church of this city has never had an organ or instrument of music. The spirit of Robert Lennox still abides. It was considered a great innovation when a quartet choir was introduced.

St Bartholomew's is just now the ruling church among fashionable church goers. It is the newest and most elegant Episcopal church in the city. Its singing is a specialty. Men crowd its aisles to hear the music. When the sermon comes on they leave in droves.

The elegant little church on Fifth avenue known as Christ Church has been famous for its music. Run down by Mr Ewer's ritualism a New York broker proposed to tone things up by brilliant singing. The broker paid in one year $10,000 for the music of this church.

Plymouth Church has congregational singing led by a full choir. Inside the choir is a paid quartet. The trustees set apart $7 500 for music. To this is added $500 more, bringing it up to $8,000. Fifteen hundred of this is paid to Mr Zundel as organist. The balance the leader uses at his discretion.

Many of our churches tire of the present mode of conducting the service of song in the house of the Lord. In some cases, singers hardly get the burnt cork off their faces in season for the morning worship. Italians and Jewesses who sing at the theater until midnight on Saturday at a heavy salary appear in the church to praise the Lord.

YOUNG MAN DON'T BLUSH

I noticed a letter in your excellent paper the other day, signed "Y M C A," in which the writer, who is evidently a young gentleman, protested against the indecency of promiscuous bathing at watering places and the impropriety of ladies' bathing dresses. I cannot help thinking that this young man is very young indeed. He evidently has the silly prudery which is not out of place in a very young girl but which is very ridiculous in a young man who intends to become at some day a husband and father.

As an old lady, I feel the right to speak on the subject of ladies bathing in public. My own daughters have always done it with my warmest approbation and I should never consent to have them enter the surf unless in company with men who could look after them and keep them out of danger. I do not consider that there is anything indelicate about the bathing dresses worn by women. They cover the form completely and the fact that they permit the outlines of the body to be seen after the dresses become wet is a matter of no consequence.

The fact that women actually have bodies is one which it is silly for us to pretend to ignore especially in this age when art has made us familiar with the human form. There is nothing immoral in our bodies, and the men and women who as painters and sculptors are constantly made familiar with the undraped form do not have their morals contaminated thereby. So far from objecting to the present style of bathing dress because it reveals too much I think it would be greatly improved if it were made with short sleeves and short legs so that the wearer could secure more freedom of limb. If Y M C A does not like it he can easily stay away from the sea shore. And I will say, in conclusion that he is to be pitied who standing on the beach in full view of the majestic ocean can see nothing except the wet bathing-dress of some lady on which he has turned his opera glass.
—Lady Writer in a New York Paper

BUTLER, BUTLER EVERYWHERE—A Boston correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal says that if two Boston women stop to kiss each other on the street the sidewalk is blocked for a mile and everybody shouts 'Butler,' because that statesman is supposed to be the source of all woe.

The Salmon Fishing.

That California will get much of the credit due to Oregon for this article of export is very certain and yet there is no reason to doubt that nineteen twentieths of all the salmon that is shipped from San Francisco is from the Columbia river. By reference to [illegible] published in the [illegible] of that city we find that the imports at that place from Oregon during the first six months of this year were 11 000 cases, 85 half barrels and 1 [illegible] barrels, while the exports by sea were 40 638 cases, and by rail 508 [illegible] pounds, or in other words San Francisco during the first half of 1874 received from Oregon [illegible] pounds while she has sent abroad [illegible] pounds, or 5 0[illegible] pounds less than she has received from Oregon. Yet San Francisco papers class salmon as among her articles of export.

Miscellaneous.

The shipments of Oregon salmon this year are expected to reach 8 500 000 pounds by the end of the season. The amount sent abroad up to this time has been near 6,000 000 pounds.

Some of our exchanges in this state estimate the wheat crop at over seven million bushels. Too much by at least one and a half millions.

So far this year the treasure exports from New York foot up $41 [illegible] against $2[illegible] for the same time last year and $[illegible] in 1872.

It is estimated that there is at least $12,000 000 more coin in circulation on this coast now than there was twelve months ago. This is none too high an estimate in our opinion. The gold coined at the Mint during that time was $22 [illegible] of which only $6,[illegible] has been exported. Another proof of the fact also is that the money market is so easy and interest so much less than one year ago.

The annual wine production of the United States is estimated, in round numbers, at 20 000 000 gallons and the market value at $14 000 000, the business not having been commenced until some ten years ago. It is divided in various quantities, California, 4,000 000 gallons, Ohio 3 500,000, New York, 3 000 000, Missouri 2 000 000, Illinois [illegible] 000, Pennsylvania 2 000 000, Iowa 400 000 and so downward.

In 1873 fifty six California corporations paid dividends amounting to $21 [illegible] were mining companies, [illegible] insurance companies, 4 commercial banks, 20 savings banks and 12 miscellaneous corporations.

Officers of the prominent railways in session in New York recently agreed to abolish all sub ticket offices maintained at unnecessary expense and risk.

The total imports of tea from China and Japan to San Francisco for the first six months of this year were [illegible] valued at [illegible]. The imports of the same for 11 years and 6 months past have been [illegible] valued at [illegible].

Nearly all the Eastern life insurance companies have ceased to do new business in California owing to the stringency of state laws. Their principal complaint is against the provision which renders them responsible for the acts of their agents. This they regard as injustice and predict that if they were to agree to any such arrangements they would forfeit the confidence of their patrons.

A good deal of grain was cut in Walla Walla valley last week and threshing was to begin last Monday. The crop in that valley is short.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship John L Stephens due from San Francisco had not been telegraphed up to a late hour last evening. She left San Francisco at [illegible] Saturday.

The steamer California is announced to sail for Sitka and way ports on the 1st ult.

The ship Moonbeam is reported at Astoria where she comes under charter to load wheat for Liverpool.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market is barren of transactions for immediate delivery. If we except a few small lots which occasionally are taken by mills at $1 [illegible] cental. Exporters would probably not pay over $1 40@1 45 and are not receiving any at present. Their contracts for the new crop are held [illegible].

FLOUR—The supply of standard brands of extra is limited and most now in hands will be worked off in the local trade. [illegible] therefore keep well up being quotable at $[illegible] bbl. Common country brands can be had in abundance at $4 75.

OATS—While the current demand is well supplied there is no overstock coming in and our quotations are [illegible] cents per bushel for choice and [illegible] for inferior. We predict a decline in the course of ten days or two weeks at most.

BARLEY—There is a good demand for [illegible] for brewing purposes and such readily command $1 60 per 100 lbs including sacks. Common feed quotable at $1 40@1 50.

FEED—But little demand outside of home wants [illegible] and [illegible] weak at [illegible] ton for bran $1[illegible] for shorts and $25 for extra middlings, etc.

HAY—The new crop is coming in largely, supplying the market at reduced rates. Dealers pay $[illegible] ton for loose timothy from wagons and $1[illegible] for baled.

POTATOES—The new crop is now at hand in large lots, and prices are reduced to 37½@45c per bushel according to quality. In some parts of Washington Territory where large quantities are generally produced we are informed that the yield this year will be greatly reduced by reason of some disease the exact nature of which is unknown, though many persons call it the blight.

ONIONS—The market is firm at 2¼@2½c ℔ for choice lots of yellow inclusive of sacks.

DRIED FRUIT—For apples the inquiry hardly [illegible] our home requirements, and the figures are [illegible] sacks and 7@7½c in kegs. Plums are not changed.

BACON—The market in this commodity is in a somewhat anomalous condition. The supply is good and holders are desirous of firm prices. Hams [illegible] and shoulders are both plenty and cheap 20 000 ℔s of the latter being offered in our hearing the other day at [illegible]. [illegible] We include sides hams and shoulders all under the general name as being the one used [illegible].
